Description:

You'll never see the twist coming in this gripping novel of love and loss by bestselling author Christina McKenna. Rita-Mae has lived in fear for as long as she can remember. Fear of being alone, fear of her past and, above all, fear of her husband, Harry. Until she spots an advertisement for a vacant cottage in a small town in Northern Ireland. She makes her escape filled with hope, ready to start a new life in a new home, free from the pain of her past. But her place of refuge may not be as safe—or as anonymous—as she thought. In another small town, Dorrie wakes up unaware of where she is or how she got there. Adrift in a world for which she has no explanation, she needs to find answers quickly—before her shadowy past catches up with her. Walled in by secrets and with no one to trust, both Rita-Mae and Dorrie are unsure how to move forward. Can each woman face her inner demons and confront a menacing presence from the past once and for all? Or will the past unravel their second chance at life?

This is a difficult review for me to write. I read the author's previous book The Misremembered Man and so liked it I bought The Disenchanted Widow for my wife. She liked it too. I bought this book with the Audible version for me and my wife to listen to at the same time. My wife could not endure listening to it after a few chapters. I forgot how many. By chapter fifteen or seventeen, she banished me to our bedroom to listen to it alone. She could no longer take it... It's so depressing... she said over and over again. In the end, she was more than correct. The main characters, who narrate the book, are mentally ill. They were abused in their lives and are homicidal. The stories are related through their distorted, mentally ill perspectives. I greatly admire this author. I cannot understand whatever inspired her to write such a depressing and twisted novel.
